Bees Air-Condition Hives By Controlling Temperature

HARRISBURG. — Weather doesn't bother the bees. They air-condition their hives by controlling temperature and humidity.

Prof. E. J. Anderson, bee specialist at Pennsylvania State college, said that even when outside temperatures were below zero, bees maintained a temperature of 95 degrees Fahrenheit in the center of the winter cluster.

He said the moisture content of the hive ranges from 65 to 80 per cent. This humidity is maintained fairly constant despite varying humidity changes outside the hive. For that reason, Professor Anderson cautions beekeepers against opening hives any oftener than is necessary to care for the colony.

Rabbit Plagues Prove Costly To Australian Farm Programs

SIDNEY. — Rabbits, long known to the world by reputation as Australia's worst plaguer are said to cost that country almost two million dollars a year, offset in part by the fact that their skins and carcases sold to the United States alone bring in 36 million dollars as a minimum every 12 months.

"Down Under," through no fault of its own except the suitability of its remarkable soil and climate, is beset to all accounts with a plethora of pests from dingoes to prickly pears and burrs to bulbuls. How the bulbul found its way to the Antipodes appears to be veiled in mystery, although it is reputed to have become acclimatized about half a century ago and is the only bird that eats tomatoes in addition to fruit.

The latest undeserved application is said to be the lantana, of tropical American origin prized by gardeners in the United States for its multicolored flowers. Like many other hitherto well-behaved plants, notes the Manchester Guardian in a review of nature's perverseness there, it ran amuck when introduced to Commonwealth soil.

A fragment of water hyacinth, once a garden plant admired for its lovely mauve flower, was thrown into Swan Creek in New South Wales, and in two years had choked a 50-foot-wide stream. It then infested the rivers of two states, necessitating the expenditure of thousands of pounds to clear navigable channels. The Bathurst burr arrived over a century ago in the tails of horses from Valparaiso.

Memorial Library Acquires Valuable Egyptian Necklace

ST. BONAVENTURE, N. Y. — A necklace worn more than 3,400 years ago by a Queen of Egypt who renounced her sex has just been acquired by the Friedsam memorial library at St. Bonaventure college.

The multi-colored adornment, a double circlet of round and tabular beads with a short beaded pendant in front, once belonged to Queen Hatshopsitu, who ruled Egypt with her father, Thutmosis I, in the Eighteenth Dynasty (1546-1481 B.C.)

Hatshopsitu used every possible device to conceal her real sex, calling herself King Makeri and dressing like a man. She married her half-brother, Thutmosis II, who succeeded her.

The necklace, together with a document authenticating it, came into the possession of the library through the procurator general of the Franciscan Order of Friars Minor in Rome.

High School Chatter....

Hello - to our many friends!

We want to tell you first about the party sponsored by the S. C. A. Friday night. The party was swell - even though everyone is wondering how the S. C. A. managed to have such pretty decorations! Weren't they beautiful? Ha!

The next important event was the chapel program last Wednesday. The program was presented by the Hagee Economics classes. The play, "The Old Maids' Club" was very entertaining to all the students.

We are glad to see Joyce back at school after her trip to Florida. The 11th nEglish classes enjoyed the talks she gave about her trip. Hearing her talk about the warm climate and the interesting places and things she saw makes us want to travel.

The driving class is looking forward to getting the new car anytime now. Be - beware!

Gee! Whiz! It's time for report cards again! Doesn't time fly? Only two more times to get our report cards before we'll be finishing another school year!

Have you noticed the posters on the bulletin board lately? If you haven't - better start reading them. They are really worthwhile.

A certain "49" Ford was doing parking on Sunday. Right, kids? Did anyone count the number of people in it? We couldn't count that high.

Model A Fords are still in date, are they not, girls?

Hum - Alice looked mighty happy Monday. Who was that certain someone home over the week-end? Was it Jerry?, Must have been!

Say, Ervin, do you keep books in locker "63" or is it more interesting at that locker for other reasons? Do you know which it is, Audrey?

The Home Economics classes are glad to have Miss Carson back with them - though Mrs. Harwood was an excellent substitute.

Last week's personality - as you guessed - was Charlie Harvey.

This week we selected a girl. She is in the eleventh grade - has brown hair - blue eyes - is about 5' 5" tall. She has many, many friends because she is so friendly herself. Has wonderful disposition. She likes a certain "Dan." You see her driving an Oldsmobile to school loats of days! We aren't going to tell you any more!

We have run short of news! Therefore we take leave of you until another week!

HENRICO MINISTER WINS SERMON CONTEST

Rev. C. R. Stevens, Henrico County Baptist minister, has been named winner of the 1948 Virginia Rural Life sermon contest.

Title of his sermon was "A Rural Faith For Today."

The announcement was made by B. L. Hummel, rural sociologist at V. P. I., who said the fourth in the series of annual contests will be held this year, with the same cash prizes as last year - $25, first; $15, second; and $10, third.

Other winners were Dr. Locke White, pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church in Rockbridge County, second; and Rev. E. K. Ziegler, pastor of the Brethren Church at Bridgewater, third.

Deciding that more attention should be paid to the peace shrines of the world, Mayor Buchanan sent greetings and souvenirs to mayors of places where a peace was made ending some war. This novel boost for peace "caught on" and Appomattox got splendid publicity in newspapers all over the United States.Subsequently Mayor Buchanan got a stack of "fan mail" and people from many states wrote in to purchase souvenirs like the ones mailed.

THE HEAT OF THE DAY, by Elizabeth Bowen. Elizabeth Bowen has been recognized as one of the most distinguished living British novelists. "The Heat of The Day" is a realistic story of a woman's search for happiness, that is both moving and magnificent.

THE BOOK OF GREAT CONVERSATIONS, edited by Louis Ancelli. This book contains the winnowed best of the world's most memorable conversations. As Emerson said, "the best of life is conversation." Each of the dialogues is edited from authentic historical sources, in dramatic form, as in a play.

THE GREATEST STORY EVER TOLD, by Fulton Oursler. This is a reverent and faithful retelling of the ever-new, everlasting story of Jesus, written with powerful simplicity. CATCH A FALLING STAR, by Frederick Van de Water. Olin Roydon tells the story of his part in settling Vermont's quandry in 1780 and '81, when Canada was making peace overtures to Vermont and the other American colonies were neglecting it.

THE UNIVERSE AND DR. EINSTEIN, by Lincoln Barnett. The clearest account of the structure of the universe as science sees it today, including a foreword by Albert Einstein.

HIGH HOLIDAY, by Kathleen Norris.

CRUSADE IN EUROPE, by Dwight D. Eisenhower.

CHANGE IN SWINE MARKETING ADVISED

A change in hog-marketing to do away with inaccuracies in grading, and to assure a fair price to the farmer, has been advised by Dr. J. L. Maxton, marketing specialist at V. P. I.

The specialist says that under the present live weight method of selling, there is little reason for the farmer to improve the market quality of hogs. "Too little attention has been given to quality, and too much to weight," Maxton says.

In a recent study, cited by Maxton, researchers found that the live weight method removes only 45 per cent of the total variation of individual values, while sale on a basis of carcass weight and grade removes 83 per cent of the variation.

The 17 per cent error in pricing could be avoided in hogs were graded on cut-out value.

Under the live weight method, the hogs are not graded according to the amount of high-quality cuts they will yield, he explained.

County Budget To Be Adopted April 13th.

A proposed budget for Appomattox County for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1949, will be acted on April 13, 1949, at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors. Citizens will be heard at that time, for or against the proposed budget.

The budget is virtually the same as that of the current fiscal year.

The proposed receipts for expenditures out of general county fund amount to $111,400.00.

The school budget amount to a total of $271,505.74, slightly less than the amount actually spent in the last fiscal year.

BUCKINGHAM COUNTY INCREASES BUDGET

A tentative school budget of $119,745.60, including an appropriation to equalize Negro and white teachers' pay, has been passed by the Buckingham County board of supervisors.

The tentative school budget is $22,000 larger than last year's budget. In addition the supervisors expect a state appropriation of $155,-344.45 for school expenses in the county.

The farmers of Appomattox County are attending a Dairy Feeding School at the Court House this morning at 10 o'clock.

R. G. Connelly, Extension Dairyman, and P. H. DeHart, Extension Agronomist discussed dairy feeding, breeding and managing.

TOBACCOMEN ADVISED TO ORDER FERMATE

Tobacco farmers in Virginia have been reminded to place their orders for fermate, the recommended control material for blue mold, and see that their spray and dusting equipment is ready for use.

S. B. Fenne, plant pathologist at V. P. I., who made the recommendation, reports that blue mold is appearing earlier than usual in states south of Virginia. He says Virginia farmers should begin spraying when the disease is reported in North Carolina.

Tobacco plants in some parts of Virginia are reported as "far too advanced for this time of year..in a few cases they are nearing the 'square' stage." Some farmers, said Fenne, are planting new beds as an insurance against cold weather damage.

PTA Meeting

The Parent - Teacher Association of the Appomattox High School will meet in the high school library at 8:00 P. M. on Friday, March 25.

Continuing a policy begun last month, this meeting is the same night as a Canteen Party. This arrangement is popular both with the parents and the teen-agers.

RATE, DEPTH OF SEEDING TESTED BY RESEARCHERS

The long-recommended rate and depth of seeding winter oats seems still to be correct for the newer varieties, say researchers at Virginia Experiment Station.

P. T. Gish, assistant agronomist at the Shenandoah Valley Field Station at Staunton, reporting on two-year tests, says winter oats seeded from 2 to 3 inches deep at the rate of 8 to 10 pecks per acre give higher yields than those planted deeper or thicker.

Lee Coldwell and Forkedeer were the varieties tested.

The two-year results show also that the best time of seeding is between September 15 to September 25.

Hurry with your Red Cross contribution.

Town Discusses Water Needs At Meeting

A special meeting of the Appomattox Town Council was held on Monday night to discuss with officials of the Appomattox Garment Company, Inc., the problem of providing adequate water supply at the company's plant on Route 460. Proposed expansion of the company's plant and pay-roll are said to require considerable more water pressure than now available. It is understood that a 50,000 gallon tank at least 50 feet higher than the company's sprinkler system, is the minimum requirement. The company's pay-roll here now is approximately $40,000 per month, and plans call for a sizable increase if the matter of water pressure to meet insurance requirements can be solved.

(The meeting Monday night found town authorities anxious to do what is necessary to keep this fine pay-roll in Appomattox, and it was decided to call in engineers to survey the costs of providing the water requirements.

The winner in this contest was Miss Lora Fleshman, 8th grade, Appomattox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Fleshman. Record Average Set In Dark Tobacco Sales

A new record of high general averages was established for the 1948 crop of Virginia fire cured tobacco. Prices By grades increased over last year in all cases and the volume of sales declined slightly.

Appomattox County is Virginia's leading dark tobacco county.

The United States and Virginia Departments of Agriculture report gross sales, which are strictly fire-cured, totaled 12,709,777 pounds, averaging $32.78. This average topped last year's by $3.38, but was only 46 cents above the previous record 1945 crop. Volume, which was about ten per cent less than in the 1947-48 season, was the smallest since the 1945 crop. The average had been substancially reduced, but excellent yields minimized the loss in sales volume.
